Special Programmes for the Youth

367. SHRI PARVATHANENI UPENDRA: Will the PRIME MINISTER be pleased to state the special programmes and schemes initiated or proposed for the youth during the International Youth Year 1985?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE DEPARTMENT OF YOUTH AFFAIRS AND SPORTS (SHRI R. K. JAICHANDRA SINGH): The International Youth Year 1985, is being celebrated in India as "Year of the Youth". The Year has provided the Government an opportunity to focus its attention on the situation of our youth and to initiate and intensify programmes for youth welfare and for channelisation of youth energy towards constructive activities. Youth programmes, therefore, include activities aimed at affording young people an opportunity to be better individuals and enabling them to contribute in the task of national development. Some of the programmes that might be mentioned in this context are: holding of national integration camps, activities aimed at creating awareness against social evils like dowry, casteism, drug abuse, etc., creating a climate in favour of nationally accepted values like pride in Indianness, secularism, democracy, etc., training of young people for self-employment, setting up of youth clubs, opening of more youth hostels, creating cultural awareness among young people, giving them an opportunity to participate in sports and games, and holding of voluntary work camps including afforestation programmes and other activities of eco-development.

Besides, strengthening the existing youth programmes, the Government of India is considering to inforduce some new schemes particularly for the benefit of rural youth to impart training to them with a view to accredit their functional capabilities. Mention may be made of the following proposed schemes during the Seventh Plan period:

(i) Scheme of Training of Youth;

(ii) Scheme of Financial Assistance to Youth Clubs; and

(iii) Scheme of Youth Award.
